

Friday 11th September 2009

Oxford Brookes University Information Law and Policy Research Group and BILETA cordially invite you to a one day networking and information session for research students in the early stages of their doctoral studies within the fields of IT, IP and Cyberspace Law.

The event will have two elements:

- 1) Informal talks from a number of the members of the Group and the BILETA executive on subjects of interest to those beginning serious academic research in this area.
- 2) An opportunity to present their own material and receive constructive feedback in a friendly and non-threatening atmosphere.

Attendance at the event is free but registration is required as places are limited. Coffee and refreshments will be provided but attendees are responsible for their own accommodation. Those wishing to register should email mgillen@brookes.ac.uk stating whether or not they wish to present their own work at the day. Please make sure that your email is clearly headed "PhD Day".
